

Why is there no electricity in my house?

There are lots of different reasons why there might be no electricity in your house - from power cuts to faulty wiring. Here, we'll cover some common reasons why you might have lost power, and walk you through what to do. Why is my power out? Some of the most common causes of power outages include:

What happens if power goes out in one room?

When the power goes out in just one room, it's rarely a problem with your utility company. More often, it's a simple issue within your home's electrical system that you might be able to safely fix yourself. This guide will walk you through the most common causes and provide a safe, step-by-step process to restore power. IMPORTANT SAFETY WARNING !

What if my power went out?

When "my power went out" strikes, first figure out if it's a major issue or just your place. Grab your phone and dial your power company, or even better, pull up their outage map online to get the scoop. If they confirm it's a widespread problem, relax--it's not only you in the dark.

What should I do if my power goes out?

If it's a complete power outage, contact your power company, as the problem likely lies outside your home's electrical system. A complete power outage could also be caused by the Main Switch or burning out failing, but an electrician will need to check this for you. Step 2: Check Your Circuit Breaker Box

Still stuck in the dark after "my power went out"? Time to step up your game and troubleshoot no power like a pro with a voltage tester--your go-to tool for cracking stubborn outages.
