How do you replace a solar panel on a walkway light?

Once the wires have been pulled into the walkway light's metal top, seal it with some waterproof glue and put some glue on the original solar panel. Clamp the new solar panel onto the top of the walkway light until it has dried. Now that you have the top done, the new solar panel wires need to be soldered to the charger circuit.

What are the benefits of replacing a solar panel on a walkway light?

This adds about 50% to the total cost of the walkway light, but vastly improves its function. Replacing the original solar panel with a larger one enables it to charge in less light, which in turn lets the walkway light fully charge even when placed in a fairly shady location.
